It is entirely plausible, says James Maclaine of the Natural History Museum, that a recent plunge by a comedian into the shark tank at the Brighton Sea Life Centre could have sent a Smooth-hound shark into fatal shock.

'If this man suddenly plunged in and started splashing around that would be a huge shock to the shark and dangerous for it. An aquarium is an unnatural environment for a shark in the first place, so the shark may have been in a vulnerable state anyway and this incident would have further lowered it.'

Sharks have a reputation for ferocious attack but Ian Fergusson of the International Union for the Conservation of Nature puts them among the more shockable members of creation. He says, 'It's quite likely that this would have been dangerous for the shark. Great White sharks can be and have been scared away sometimes by human divers without any cage protection. These sharks have quite complex behaviour, just like wolves. It doesn't necessarily mean that they would react to the presence of a human jumping in as mealtime. It is quite possible that one of them might get stressed and injured.'

1. The document states that
   A. it is always easy to frighten sharks
   B. sharks always react aggressively to shock
   C. seeing humans always frightens sharks
   D. sharks are very sensitive to shock

2. The quotation in lines 14 to 20 could be described as
   A. explanatory
   B. humorous
   C. judgemental
   D. advisory
3. The most appropriate headline (line 1) for this document would be

   A. Comedian kills rare shark
   B. Can a shark die from fright?
   C. Are Great White sharks really so dangerous?
   D. Brighton Aquarium defends death plunge.

4. The main point being made on lines 11-20 is that

   A. people should not swim with sharks
   B. sharks are fairly predictable
   C. sharks are very like wolves
   D. people do not realise how sensitive sharks are

5. The best word to replace 'lowered' on line 10 of the document is

   A. weakened
   B. encouraged
   C. annoyed
   D. submerged
Fadiga gets all-clear after scare

Bolton midfielder Khalilou Fadiga has been released from hospital after collapsing on the pitch before the Carling Cup tie against Tottenham at the Reebok Stadium on Wednesday night. It is understood the results of the tests gave the Senegal football star the all-clear.

A club spokesman confirmed: ‘Khalilou has been discharged from hospital and returned home.’ Fadiga, who has a history of heart problems, fell to the ground in the warm-up and was carried off on a stretcher to the dressing-room. He came around in the treatment area before being taken to hospital.

Fadiga arrived at Bolton last month and was given the all-clear by their medical staff following concerns over surgery in Belgium for an irregular heartbeat. He signed a deal until the end of the season after spending two weeks training with the club following his release from Inter. He has yet to start a game.

6 The document refers to an incident that happened in

A Belgium
B Senegal
C a stadium
D a dressing-room

7 In the document, the phrase 'all-clear' means that Fadiga was

A found in good health
B cleared of any wrong doing
C allowed to leave
D discharged

8 This document is likely to be from

A an accident report
B a health magazine
C a business report
D a national newspaper
9 Inverted commas have been used in the document in order to

A report the exact words of a member of the football club
B suggest the opinion of a member of the football club
C represent the Bolton midfielder's point of view
D reveal the Bolton midfielder's true feelings

10 According to the document, while in Belgium, Fadiga

A played a match
B had an operation
C signed a deal
D trained for two weeks

Questions 11 to 15 are based on the following draft document.

LOST PUPPY

Our lovely black and white puppy called Buttons disappeared at 6.30 pm on Wednesday evening. She was last seen in the vicinity of York Park near the main entrance to Green Road. She's only three months old. She needs lots of care and special attention. We wonder whether she is hungry and thirsty. We are extremely concerned about her safety.

£50 REWARD

This is available for anyone who helps to return Buttons to us safely. If you've seen Buttons recently, or have any knowledge of her whereabouts, please get in contact with either Sumaira or Ben on Ashford 633298. We would really appreciate any information about Buttons as we're missing her a lot.

New Report on Levels of Sugar and Salt in School Meals

The report revealed that school meals have dangerously high levels of fat, salt and sugar. The research was carried out by Dr Helen Crawles, a nutritionist at healthy eating charity, The Caroline Walker Trust. She analysed a typical five-day primary school menu with dishes such as spaghetti bolognese, fish shapes and roast turkey. Her team also included common side orders such as chips, mashed potato, baked beans, carrots, sweetcorn and roast potatoes. A dessert was also taken into account each day such as iced buns, flapjacks, fruit pie and ice cream.

The results revealed much higher levels of salt, fat and sugar than are recommended in the nutritional guidelines for school lunches. School meals contain approximately a third more fat than the recommended maximum weekly intake for seven to ten year olds. The sugar level in the average weekly school menu is 19.4g, compared to the recommended 16.3g.

The Secretary of State for Education, has announced a review of school meals' standards as a result of growing public concern. "The Government accepts that it is risking the health of children by allowing meals that are high in fat, sugar and salt at school," said Peter Melchett of the Soil Association. "It is a well known fact that most school dinners in primary schools do not provide the correct level of nutrients and give children too much fat, sugar and salt, but the Government still refuses to act to protect children at their most crucial stage of development."

"If children are encouraged to eat healthily in primary school, they are likely to demand good quality food as they grow older." A healthy alternative school meal menu has been drawn up, including such dishes as macaroni cheese, salad and apple cake.

The Department for Education and Skills said it is investing £1 million in drawing up new school nutrition guidelines.
16 It is suggested in the document that

A young children should eat healthily
B children eat school meals which are low in fat

A trivial
B basic
C vital
D desirable
TALK TO FRANK

Being a teenager is bad enough without having to worry about drugs or who to talk to about them. Sometimes we worry that whoever we talk to about drugs won't know enough about them or, if we do talk to someone, they'll panic, get scared or get angry. That's where FRANK can help. FRANK will provide you with all the help and information you need about drugs and their effects. And FRANK won't panic, get scared or get angry. Ever.

BUT I ALREADY KNOW ABOUT DRUGS

You probably do know a bit, but you can't know it all. You've probably talked to your mates about them. You might know people who use drugs. You may even have been offered them — and if you have, you need to know as much as you can.

There's no harm in checking out what you know or what you've been told — just so you're sure. So check with FRANK.

MY PARENTS DON'T KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT DRUGS

You never know, they might. After all, one in three adults has tried an illegal drug at some point in their lives. But, like you, your parents may have read or heard things that are not quite true. And, like you, they need to be informed. So FRANK can help them too.

I KNOW PEOPLE WHO TAKE DRUGS — AND THEY'RE OK

Sometimes people take a particular drug and they are OK. But on another occasion, the same drug could make them ill — or even kill them.

All drugs damage the body in some way or another. And because you can never be sure exactly what is in the drug, you don't know what may happen next.

Talk to FRANK. All day, every day, confidentially and for free.

FRANK IS HERE FOR YOU 24 HOURS A DAY, 7 DAYS A WEEK.
21 The writer of the document includes a mixture of
A anecdote and opinion
B fact and investigation
C evidence and explanation
D advice and information

22 The writer states that parents
A do not want to talk about illegal drugs
B have usually tried illegal drugs themselves
C probably don’t know anything about drugs
D need to know the facts about drugs

23 According to the document,
A you can always be sure what drugs contain
B taking drugs is risky
C drugs always make you ill
D older people have no experience of drugs

24 The writer describes FRANK as someone who
A liaises only with young people
B has actually tried illegal drugs
C will tell you about the effects of drugs
D will not promise to talk to you confidentially

25 The tone of the document is
A serious but reassuring
B angry but light-hearted
C critical and persuasive
D concerned and confused
