Samsung, the South Korean tech giant, has warned owners of the Galaxy Note 7 to turn off their phone after more reports of the device catching fire. The company will also stop shipping the flagship phone to stores.

The device, launched in August, was set to rival Apple's iPhone. Samsung engineers must now conduct an investigation into what is causing so many phones to catch fire.

Samsung had already been hit following a recall of 2.5 million phones in September after many burst into flames when their batteries exploded. This new episode further damages the company's credibility as many of the exploding phones are those that had batteries replaced in September and were deemed to be safe.
On November 5th, British people remember the spectacular attempt to blow up the Houses of Parliament by celebrating ‘Bonfire Night’.

All over Britain, there are firework displays and bonfires with models of Guy Fawkes which are burned on the fire.

It’s normally quite cold on Bonfire Night, so people wear warm clothes, hats, scarves and gloves to spend the evening outside. Traditional Bonfire Night food is jacket potatoes and toffee apples.
